

Dr. Roman Novozhilov is the Head of ESG at the New Development Bank, a Shanghai-based multilateral development bank established by BRICS countries for financing infrastructure projects in emerging markets. He has over 20 years of global experience across Environmental, Social and Governance matters.

He joined the newly-created NDB in 2017 to launch its ESG function and is responsible for integrating environmental, social, and governance (ESG) aspects in NDB's credit and private equity products and for delivering ESG advisory services to NDB's clients.

Before joining NDB, Dr. Novozhilov was with the International Finance Corporation (IFC) in Washington, D.C., Johannesburg and Hong Kong, focusing on managing ESG risks of IFC's investments in Asia, Africa and Latin America and helping IFC clients to improve their ESG performance. Before that, he held various roles in sustainability policy research at the World Bank in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Novozhilov holds a Ph.D. from American University (Washington D.C.) and an M.A. from Central European University (Vienna). He is a CAIA Charterholder and Certified ESG Analyst (CESGA).
